Social Enterprise Canvas

Social enterprises hold three priorities as equally important:
(1) profit-maximizing, (2) socially positive impact, (3) environmentally sustainable.

Key partnerships

Which key activities are they performing?
Who are your key partners?

Key activities

What are the key steps to move ahead to your customers?

Key People & Resources

What resources do you need to make your idea work?

Value Proposition

The products or services produced by the enterprise must help mitigate generally accepted social or environmental problems

Social Value
Who else benefits from what you are doing and how? Whom are you helping?

Regenerative Value
What unintended effects are you having on human and more-than-human stakeholders and other institutions?

Relationships

How often will you interact with your customers?

Channels

How are you going to reach your segments? How beneficiaries and customers alike can connect to your proposition?

Beneficiaries

Who are your customers? Describe your target audience in a couple of words.

Customers
Who are your customers? Describe your target audience in a couple of words.

Externalities

Positive Externalities
Who else benefits from what you are doing and how? Whom are you helping?

Negative Externalities
What unintended effects are you having on human and more-than-human stakeholders and other institutions?

Carrying out a macro-environmental/PESTEL analysis allows you to carry out a 360-degree view of your environment and see any barriers or opportunities ahead in the short, medium, and long term. PESTEL stands for political, economic, social, technological, environmental, and legal contexts in which your social enterprise is operating.

Cost Structure

Whats are your biggest expenditure areas?
How do they change as you scale up?

Key Metrics

How will you show that you are creating social impact? What are the numbers you measure to know if you are successful or not?

Financial Sustainability

What are the different sources you tap to generate impact?

Revenue Streams

Public sector contracts, private contracts, and tradable service income. Breakdown your revenue sources by %

Surplus

How you will redistribute any surplus profits you generate in one of the cornerstone goals of social business

Funding

Sources may include donations, grants, awards, to name a few. Breakdown your revenue sources by %
